Contents

I Introduction

1	Linguistic analysis of signed languages and language universals	13
2	Traditional analyses of the use of space in signed languages and localist linguistic theories	16
3	The aims of the present analysis	18
4	The composition of the book	20
5	Characterisation of the data	23
5.1	Expectations of iconicity	23
5.2	Judgements of grammaticality	25
5.3	Different language varieties	30
5.4	The informants and the data of this study	33
6	Form analysis of signs	35
6.1	The articulatory means of signed languages	35
6.2	The manual alphabets, the Mouth-Hand System, and names	43
6.3	Liddell and Johnson's sequential form analysis of signs	45
6.4	The term locus	52
6.5	Formal description of some different verb types	57
6.6	The morphological type of signed languages	60

II Discourse and Space

1	Introduction	69
2	The frame of reference	71
3	Time lines	80
3.1	The time lines	80
3.2	A comparison with time lines in spoken languages	90
3.3	Conclusion	95
4	Loci and referentiality	97
5	Shifted reference, shifted attribution of expressive elements, and shifted locus	103
6	Pointing signs	117
6.1	Types of pointing signs	117
6.2	The pronoun, the determiner, and information-packaging	128
6.3	Person, place, and shifters	131
7	Discourse and space: Conclusion	140

III Verbs and Space

1	Localism and transitivity	147
2	Different types of modifications: An overview	151
3	Earlier verb classifications	157
4	Plain signs	162
5	Modifications for distribution	165
6	Semantic agreement and marking for a specific point of view	173
6.1	Alternative descriptions	173
6.2	Agreement features, direction, and domain	183
6.3	The many uses of the c–form	194
6.4	First person, point of view, and agentivity	208
7	Pragmatic agreement	214
7.1	Pragmatic agreement, semantic agreement, and point-of-view marking	214
7.2	Other treatments of phenomena like pragmatic agreement	221
7.3	Equivalents to pragmatic agreement in spoken languages	224
8	Polymorphemic verbs	227
8.1	Introduction	227

8.2 Predicate classifiers and classificatory verbs in spoken languages 235
8.3 Classifiers or verb stems in Danish Sign Language? 243
8.4 Movement morphemes in polymorphemic verbs 254
8.5 Categories of stems in polymorphemic verbs 273
8.6 Polymorphemic verbs and space 283

IV Space in Danish Sign Language 307

Appendix A: Signed language in Denmark 319
Appendix B: Guide to the transcriptions 321
References 327
Subject index 341
Name index 345
Index of signs in the illustrations 349
List of figures 350
Summary in Danish / resumé på dansk 351
Illustrations 359